Wolf Rd. Paving Being Rushed In Spite of Cold

The weather having been favorable the past week the Thompson-Powers Construction Co. of Joliet have been speeding up the paving of Wolf road from the Cook and Will County line south thru Mokena, laying an average of 800 feet of paving a day. A full force worked all day last Sunday and laid 750 feet. Each day more concrete was laid until an average of 800 feet was maintained. The concrete mixer was up to the J. V. Hall place by Wednesday evening. The rain which turned into snow that night stopped work Thursday morning. With the weather moderating it will only be another week before the paving is laid up to the R. I. crossing in the village.

If the weather only holds out, the paving will be carried up to the Hickory creek bridge before Thanksgiving day.

Owing to a four foot fill at the north bridge 400 feet have had to remain unpaved to allow for the setting of the fill. A gap of about 200 feet will also remain unpaved at the south end to allow a fill to settle.

Chairman Fred Francis of the Will County Bond Issue committee has promised that the gaps will be given a stone top dressing so the Wolf road can be used for traffic soon as the concrete has laid the required length of time.

Monday morning the Bond Issue Committee represented by Fred Francis, County right-of-way committee by Mr. A. E. Grinton, County engineer Glenn Fletcher, St. John cemetery board represented by Wm. Schmuhl and Wm. Semmler, J. V. Hall, Charles Hirsch and Emil D. Cappel, met at the Cemetery to consider ways and means for taking care of the cemetery entrance from Wolf road which at this point has been cut down over four feet. The county officials agreed to cut in the driveway far enough back so the entrance will not be steep and to pave the entrance. Ten foot slabs will be laid from each side of the entrance to Wolf road and these slabs will be joined at the main gateway, making a twenty foot pavement.

The Mokena road committee was instrumental in getting this improvement acted upon.

Ona E. McGovney also a member of the local road committee was unable to be present on account of serving on the federal jury in Chicago.

The matter of securing the balance of the right of way south of Hickory creek to the Lincoln highway on Wolf road will be the next matter to receive attention so that a contract for paving this portion of Wolf road can be let this winter.

Rock Island Refuses To Change Time

The Rock Island has refused to make any change in the time of the morning west bound passenger train so as to enable the Mokena students attending the Joliet high school to get to school on time. The present train schedule makes the students late for their classes. According to L. G. Bruder, the matter of having this train earlier will be taken up with the Commerce Commission. An effort is also being made to have the Rock Island make the following other train time changes: have the present 5:10 p. m. train leave Chicago at 5:15 to enable commuters to get home earlier. Have the 5:36 train leave Chicago at 5:45 p. m.

These trains are asked to stop at Englewood, Washington Heights, Blue Island and their regular stops.

Request is also made that Train No. 274 leaving Joliet at 7 a. m. on week days, also run on Sunday. Also that Train No. 285 leaving Chicago at 5:10 p. m. be run on Sunday. All those interested in better train service from Joliet to Chicago are asked to get in touch with L. G. Bruder, Mokena. His telephone number is Mokena 52-W2.

Community Papers Support to Ames

The last week of the hottest campaign in recent years in Cook county is under way, and when the battle smoke clears up next Wednesday morning, close observers predict that Major Carlos Ames, Republican candidate for sheriff of Cook county, will be among the winners.

Foundation for this prediction was given strength last Friday noon, when publishers and editors representing 58 county and city-community newspapers met at the Bismarck Hotel, listened to talks by Major Ames and other county ex-service men, and unanimously endorsed the candidacy of Major Carlos Ames for Sheriff.

"In submitting my candidacy," said Ames, "I feel it a duty to outline my plans, for inspection by the voters."

"I want to make the County Police known as the finest and most respected body of men in the country for the protection of life and property. I would cooperate in fighting crime and organized criminals with the Chicago police, with States attorney Swanson's office, and with Federal authorities, because what has been lacking all down the line, has been team work and harmony."

"Having served as Vice President of the Managing board of the Illinois State Reformatory at Pontiac, I have definite ideas and ideals with respect to management of the County Jail, with a practical ideal of administration that will send men forth better than when they came in."

"I want to be sheriff of the decent people of Cook County, and a credit to my wife and family."

Major Carlos Ames has been a life long Republican. He was formerly Secretary and Chief Engineer of Lincoln Park and is now serving as President of the important Chicago Civil Service Commission.

The News-Bulletin and The Tinley Park Times were represented by their editor, Wm. Semmler.

A vote for Lewis is A vote for Thompson Ruth Declares

The News-Bulletin is in receipt of the following telegram from Ruth Hanna McCormick, candidate for U. S. Senator:

Editor News-Bulletin:
Mayor Thompson of Chicago urges people to defeat me and says publicly that he has not been for me and that I have not been for him politically. This absolutely disproves false propaganda last two years that I had been associated with so called Thompson City Hall gang. Thompson wants the Democrats to help re-elect him next year. A vote for Lewis for senator means a vote for Bill Thompson for mayor. Believe your readers should know this.

Ruth Hanna McCormick.

DON'T FAIL TO VOTE NEXT TUES.

Next Tuesday is the big day—Election Day. It is the duty of every man or woman voter to go to the polls and vote. We are not telling you how to vote, that is up to you, but we do say this use your franchise and VOTE. Do not stay at home and let the other fellow do it. You can get the right kind of candidates in office if you vote but if you shirk your duty at the ballot box you just have to take the consequences. If the people were denied the right to vote they would be anxious to have the voting privilege but as they have that privilege they are oft times prone to assume an indifferent attitude. Be sure to remember that next Tuesday is November 4th Election Day so go to your polls and VOTE!

Tiney Park Lions Club News Notes

The members of the Tinley Park Lions along with members of the Tinley Park Legion Post who were guests of the former at their Halloween stag party Monday night at the Community hall, had the honor of hearing a very interesting talk on the habits and living conditions of various peoples of the World as given by Mr. O'Brien, a member of the "Canadian Northwest Mounted Police" who saw service in the intelligence unit of the above force for a period of eight years.

Mr. O'Brien is a Lieutenant of the Northwest Mounted and was a Colonel in the French Legionnaires during the war.

He stated that many people have often heard the expression that the Northwest Mounted always get their man. He declared there is a reason for that and that is that upon starting on their journey they know that if they ever come back with out having gotten their man it means dismissal from service.

He further stated that men who belong to the intelligence department must study for three years after which an examination is taken on various subjects.

These men must also be able to endure the warmest of tropic weather as well as the frigid zones of the north and sometimes stay in these localities for months at a time and many times trail their men for years before their quest is completed.

One very interesting part of Mr. O'Brien's talk was on following one of the men around the world—what the officer has to contend with the various people he imitated and the life and living conditions gone thru for the sake of living up to the slogan of "Getting their man."

True Halloween eats, pumpkin pie with whipped cream, sweet cider was served. A wonderful time is the report of those present.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Erieland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. They make a runaway marriage. Erieland is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife. Will and Ernestine begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. John Poole, Will's best friend, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's resort. Pastano irritates Ernestine by criticizing Will for bringing her to such a place. Ernestine is hurt because Will insists he must take Poole, who is drunk, home and leave her in care of his friend, Tucker. It brings their first quarrel.

"Undress and get in bed," said Will. "What do you mean, sitting here, without more clothes on, in this icy room? Do you wish to harm yourself?"

She laughed. "You are concerned about my welfare, aren't you?" she taunted him, and for answer he seized her shoulders and gave her a quick little shake.

"Ernestine," he demanded, "will you do as I say?"

She stood trembling, fighting down the stupid well of tears, reaching out after her departing anger.

"Will," her voice was as low, as vital as his own—"I'm in such a rage that I have got to talk to you. You can't treat me this way. You can't leave me to the courtesy of strangers. You can't take me to such places—where there's drunkenness and immorality. You have got to be a better husband to me than that. I have given up everything for you—every-

"When you are in bed, I'll talk to you," he answered, as he threw off his coat and went to the wardrobe and brought her her warm dressing gown, nightgown and fur-lined moccasins. He undid the fastenings of her dress and before she could arm herself against him, he lifted it off over her head. The satin slip, the silken underthings—her body was like cold marble. In a moment, it seemed, she was in nightgown and dressing gown, in bed, and he was drawing off her gossamer hose and chafing her feet in his own cold hands until the mottled skin showed red with blood. Then he tucked her under the covers and brought a chair and sat down beside her, not touching her. Ernestine laughed again.

"If you really cared," she said, her eyes dark with anger and pain, "whether I were warmly in bed you might have come with me to see."

He was silent. He was very pale. Small beads of perspiration stood upon his forehead in the cold room.

"I am not likely to be ill," she said scornfully. "Don't be afraid of that." Still he did not speak, but looked at her as though he were trying to arrange some momentous decision in his mind. He took a cigarette from his pocket with hands trembling so that when he lighted it he burned himself, and flung the match away with an angry exclamation.

"Ernestine," he said, turning to her, "there is one thing that I will never take from you. You are hysterical now, but no matter how angry, how sick or upset you are, there is one thing that you must never say to me. Never again. I won't take it from you."

He drew the smoke into his lungs with an effort at self-control, while she stared up at the blur of him, her dark eyes swimming with tears.

"I didn't know that you gave up anything for me," he said. "I thought this marriage was on both sides the satisfying of a strong need. I never asked you to make a sacrifice for me. At least, that is not the way I thought of it, and I don't think you did either. But if you made one, I will never ask you to continue it. Any time you want what you left you have only to put on your hat and go back and get it. This must be understood between us. You are under no compulsion to stay with me. If you gave up other things, it was because this was something you wanted more. Either our marriage was a gain for both of us, or it was a mistake."

"Why don't you go ahead and remind me that I proposed to you?" she said, too helpless in her own emotions to be sensible.

"Did you?" he asked coldly. "I thought the matter was spontaneous. I thought it was inevitable. Don't cheapen yourself with such a thought. But however it happened, it was not a sacrifice. I will not be sacrificed for. I don't want anybody to give up anything for me. Understand?"

There was a moment of silence, and he went on swiftly:

"It may be that before we are through with this business of marriage it will be really hard for us. I don't know that I'll ever be what your family considers essential in a husband—a good provider. I may never make more than a small living for us. Sometimes, like now, I feel such power in me that I could go out and take life by the throat. I feel at times that there are big things in me, Ernestine. But perhaps all human beings feel that way. There are other moments when I'm not even sure that I can hold the job I have. What then? Maybe there is worse ahead of us, instead of better. What of that? Do we love each other, or don't we? Are we married, or are we simply having a lovely time and will go home when the party is over? You can do as you like. I will not interfere with your actions, but neither will I come home and account for my own. If Mr. Poole is drunk and it seems necessary to me to go home with him, you must allow me the exercise of my own judgment. I didn't leave you unprotected. In reality, you left me."

"It wasn't only that." She was actually defending herself. "It was everything. Lillian and Loring coming in on us, and Mr. Pastano—"

Half weeping, still partly in the hold of anger, she told him all that Mr. Pastano had said to her. He listened attentively, but made nothing of it.

"What do you care," he exclaimed, "what that bully says? It's only a compliment. It's only a denial of his whole code of morals. The fact that you could sit in his dirty place and still be so clean that even he could see it, gives the lie to all he says."

"I don't understand anything," wailed Ernestine. "Only I was so hurt—I had to go off alone with them. You might have come with me. I was so happy, so thrilled, and then everything was spoiled without any warning. I can't adjust myself to things like you do—I don't understand. Of course I care what Mr. Pastano thinks. I don't want him to think you would take me out to associate with p-prostitutes!"

He sat on the edge of the bed now and held her hand and smoked another cigarette and thought about this. But they had come back into a calmer place. He began to reason with her in his steady voice, looking down at her with his kindled, intelligent eyes.

"You see, Ernestine, he's got the old line on things, and we, I believe, want the new. Pastano's morality and virtue are only for women. I've been there often, and he's made me very welcome. How unreal it is. Virtue is a woman's prerogative, and a stone wall about her to insure it. A harem! You don't believe in walled gardens for wives, do you, Ernestine? After all, no man can protect his wife's virtue for her, if she is determined to throw it away."

"You think then that a husband has no responsibilities at all?"

"I didn't say that. Certainly he has responsibilities. He is to provide for her to the best of his ability. He is to share all his earnings and his honors with her. He is to shelter her and speak kindly to her and love her and not find fault. He is to be faithful in word and thought. He is to be natural in his relationship with her and avoid sentimentality. But also, she is to be a woman grown and unafraid, his equal, not a child for him to protect like a child."

"You are so hard," she wept, "so hard with me."

He bent and kissed her and pressed his face to hers. "It's life," he said. "We have to grow up. Life is hard."

Ernestine wakened next morning to find that the pain and confusion of the night before had vanished into a new and not unhappy perspective on her life.

For the first time she could see what a blow it had been to mamma and papa to have her living in Erie street, with no margin, no possessions, no possibility of restraint or economy. How difficult it was—perhaps for their sakes she ought to co-operate with mamma and papa to do something for them. Enough money for a decent flat—a small comfortable house—it would be so much easier for mamma.

But Ernestine felt again the cold wind on her cheeks, remembered vividly how she had wept, and how she had said, again and again, "I promise, Will—I promise." He had asked her for no such statement. She had done the bargaining. Whatever it cost—to her family or to herself—she would keep that promise to Will, and live on what he brought her until he himself told her to do otherwise.

Ernestine began to wonder if she would be as good a wife and mother as Elaine Erieland, when the time came that Will had made good.

She paused to consider this thought and smiled happily, for now she saw that for the first time she was entirely confident of Will's success. It had been as much longing as conviction before, but now she was sure. How hard he was! His hardness brought, only admiration this morning, the practical respect of a practical person. "If you want to go back, you've only to put on your hat and do it!" She wondered how many men had the courage to take a stand like that.

She did not regret the quarrel at all. Her marriage had attained a new reality. She knew that she was not simply having a good time. She knew that she could not go home when the party was over. They had advanced from the honeymoon period into permanence.

In what way, here and now, could she make this new feeling practical, make it effective?

How would they meet the obligation of childbirth? Would she go home to mamma or to some hospital? They would have to plan without mamma if they were to be consistent. She understood that babies were frightfully expensive. She had read articles in magazines about them. Yet thousands of women with no more money than she possessed had babies. She would have to find out how they managed.

She would have to see a doctor, ask questions, answer them. She would have to find out the rates at different hospitals, under different conditions. And after she had investigated the matter and decided on her own plan, she would have to begin to save a definite amount every week, out of Will's pay, so that they might meet the emergency. That would be fun—to have money in her hand, when her time came!

She decided to say nothing to Will about this, until she knew. Like her mother, she must exercise her virtue privately and let results speak for her. She had a few dollars with which to open a savings account. There was a bank nearby, a branch of a downtown bank. She would get a metal coin chest for herself and Will.

Her mental activity now became physical, and she rose and dressed. Kissed Will lightly on the cheek, and left a note on the dresser for him, lest he think she had taken his advice and gone home. Downstairs she found a box full of roses for her, and a card in it with a few words written in an erect elaborate script:

"To beg forgiveness for my rudeness, and to express the hope that we may be real friends some day.—L. S. Pastano."

Ernestine gave the roses to Mrs. Bennett without comment and went out.

Last April she had been a school-girl. Now she was filled with the solemn importance of wifehood and motherhood. The sweet air filled her with happiness. Her husband's face fled before her mind's eye, down the long curve of boulevard, an indignant countenance, fiery, strong. Her heart contracted within her at the thought of him and his love.

The visit to the doctor's was prolonged, but she reached mamma's house in time for lunch, and found the two women so full of Lillian's plans that she kept her own secret.

Determined to make the day complete she left early and set out for the long tiresome street car ride to the Northwest side. She was ashamed to realize how few were the visits she and Will had made to the little house where his mother and father lived. She was at her mother's home two or three times a week, but they had not been to see Will's mother half a dozen times in the months of their marriage. It was not intentional neglect, but it always seemed to work out that way, and Will had been as lax as she about spending his one day a week on that long journey.

Copper Mines of Chile Worked by the Incas?

What is now the world's largest known copper ore deposit was worked by the prehistoric Incas, judging by remains that have been found at and near the copper mines of Chuquibambilla, Chile. Within the mine, primitive tools have been found from time to time, such as stone hammers and wooden shovels, as well as mummified remains of early Indian miners, one of which is now at the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

The ruins of Pucaro, an ancient fortified city destroyed by the Spaniards during their first invasion of Chile, are 25 miles from Chuquibambilla. Ancient graves belonging to this prehistoric city have yielded bowls and other utensils of copper as well as bead necklaces made from brochantite and atacamite, minerals characteristic of the Chuquibambilla deposits.

The Incas, reputed as pre-Columbian, America's best miners and metal workers, conquered this part of Chile about 1443. It is reliably estimated, and the old mines may, therefore, have been worked at least ninety years before the discovery of America.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Call for Definition of Still Small Voice

The case of the woman who has advertised for the owner of a gold pin set with small diamonds which she found 25 years ago, is described as one of troubled conscience. Through a quarter of a century the woman must have been stilling the small voice within her that was reminding her that she was keeping something which was not hers and which she was making no effort to return to its owner.

What is this conscience which abides with all human beings and compels us to acts which we do not wish to perform? The dictionary definition is of no help in answering the question. "The knowledge of our own acts and feelings as right or wrong" explains nothing. The difference between right and wrong is so often a personal one, and when a person wishes to justify an act of his to himself it is generally easy. Wrong can be made to appear right to oneself if self-interest is allowed to become paramount. But despite the justification, conscience is never wholly stifled.

It nags and nags at one and gives no peace until, like the woman with the pin, it finally forces what may be called confession. The cynical Taleyland said that to be happy a man should have a good digestion and no conscience. Possibly, but if it is so, practically no one is truly happy. Conscience may undoubtedly be fostered and what troubles one generation may not trouble another. But conscience is a fixed part of ourselves, something which is born with us. It is of the moral order of the universe, a monitor implanted within us by a Supreme Power.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Sent Suit to Waxen Effigy

Just before his recent visit to this country, Sir Thomas Lipton went to Madame Tussaud's museum in London, which is famed for its collection of wax effigies of famous men, with the object of inspecting the figure of himself which had just been put on view. Sir Thomas at once took exception to the manner in which the figure was clothed, and the next day he sent one of his own yachting suits down to the museum with the request that the figure be put in it, which was promptly done. The manager of the place said that the new suit fitted the dummy to a "T."

The Illinois drought commission has discovered that the greatest need of the farmers in the 37 southern Illinois counties set aside as drought areas is money to buy seed for planting and feed for foundation stock. Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has therefore been asked for an opinion on whether the legislature can create a fund to be loaned to drought sufferers to purchase seed for spring planting. It is expected seed corn will cost more than usual.

Governor Emmerson gave an address of welcome at the annual banquet of the Rehekah state assembly held the evening preceding the three-day convention of the Odd Fellows and Rehekahs of the state. He emphasized the marked development of recent years in opportunities granted women in politics, business, science and otherwise. Among the things a woman can do to fulfill her obligation of citizenship he listed instilling lessons of good citizenship in the minds of their own children, and turning their attention to activities concerned with school management, child welfare, efficient municipal housekeeping and public safety. Responses were made by E. M. Cobb, Centralia, deputy grand master of the Grand lodge, and Mrs. Grace F. Balfour, Waukegan, vice president of the assembly.

Auditor of Public Accounts Oscar Nelson, in his October banking bulletin, says this to bankers:

"Depositors are becoming more bank minded. Confidence and good will have somewhat waned in the past. Now is the time to bring back depositors through conservative high-class advertising. This advertising should consist largely of the publication of a well-balanced statement. One of the requisites in this connection is the maintenance at all times of a reserve sufficient to take care of the normal business of a bank, together with such conditions as may arise through emergencies. Repeating a previously expressed opinion, we believe that the bank should maintain sufficient liquidity, which in itself is good advertising. "If the public can be convinced that the banks can take care of the situation in their particular locality a large percentage of the depositors who have sought other fields will return to the fold from which they strayed."

A class of more than 300 persons was admitted to the bar by the Supreme court, being divided into two sections for the ceremonies because of its size. The new lawyers received their diplomas from Clerk Charles W. Vail's office and then were entertained by the Illinois State Bar association. An address on "Lincoln in Springfield" was delivered by Paul M. Angle, secretary of the Abraham Lincoln association. The class and justices were guests of the bar association at a dinner at the Leland hotel at noon, with George A. Cooke, of Chicago, a former member of the court, as the chief speaker.

Automobile investigators under direction of Secretary of State William J. Stratton have been instructed to appear before the school children, working through county and city superintendents, and advise them of the hazards of the highways. They are also expected to co-operate with other agencies and make every possible effort to secure better observance of the laws of the road. In Illinois alone 2,017 persons were killed last year in motor vehicle accidents, an average of one to every 3,000 citizens. The total in the United States was 31,500, an average of one person killed every 17 minutes.

Authority to discontinue street railway service on a number of streets and highways in Jacksonville and environs and to substitute motor bus service has been granted by the Illinois commerce commission. Testimony had been introduced to show tracks, wires and joints are in bad condition, and that complaints have been made as to the noise of the street railways and radio interference.

Charles W. Hadley, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, attended the meeting of the Central Warehousemen's association at Peoria on October 20, giving an address dealing with the powers of the Illinois Commerce commission over warehouses. He also spoke concerning the various duties and classification of warehouses in the state.

Officers of the Building Association League of Illinois elected at the closing session of the league at Freeport are: Frank J. Petru, Cicero, president; F. O. Schneider, Kankakee, first vice president; Ward B. Whitlock, Springfield, secretary; Nicholas Johnson, Batavia, treasurer.

An increase of 37.7 per cent over the August estimated valuation of building permits was reported for September by the 45 Illinois cities sending in statistics to the state department of labor, this being declared to be the most hopeful situation being reported in Illinois during the year. Residential building activity was a main cause.

The Supreme court has appointed Judge Joseph P. David, of Chicago, as a member of the first district Appellate court to succeed Judge Jesse Holcomb, deceased.

Auditor of Public Accounts Oscar Nelson has issued a statement urging the voters of the state to vote November 4 in favor of the amendments to the Illinois state banking act. Some changes he gives as most conspicuous are: The auditor will have power to more fully investigate applications for new bank charters. Minimum capital of new banks will be $50,000.00 instead of $25,000.00. A new bank is required to have a surplus of not less than 10 per cent of its capital and reserve for operation of not less than 5 per cent of its capital. No portion of the bank's capital may be withdrawn and no dividends paid until one-tenth part of its profits, since the previous dividend, has been added to surplus until the surplus amounts to 20 per cent of the capital. The provision in the present act authorizing the carrying of excess loans upon permit is repealed. General supervisory powers of the auditor of public accounts have been materially strengthened.

More than 1,000 miles of new pavement will have been laid this year by the time cold weather puts an end to the construction work, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced. Of this total the state will have laid approximately 830 miles and the remainder will have been laid by the counties under the state aid law and with the funds derived by them from the three-cent gasoline tax. In addition, the state and counties together this year will have graded 200 miles of roadbed for future paving, and have built approximately 180 bridges. Illinois, which already held the world's record for miles of paved road completed in one week, exceeded that record by one mile during the week ending October 2, when 71.65 miles of road were paved. In the Chicago metropolitan area alone $8,500,000 was the allotted amount for this year.

As a help to solve the unemployment situation and relieve the existing business depression in Illinois, wholehearted support of the Buy Illinois Products movement has been recommended by Eugene D. Funk, chairman of the Buy Illinois Products commission, created by the last general assembly. In a statement he likens the Buy Illinois Products movement to the protective tariff in that it is meant to keep trade within the section where the goods are produced, but he adds that it "must rely solely upon public opinion for its support." He also says: "When jobs are scarce employers should make it a rule to give preference to the residents of their own city rather than hire floaters. Housewives can help relieve the situation by patronizing their neighborhood stores, and, wherever possible, buying goods made in their own state."

The national observance of Children's Book week, November 16 to 22, calls attention to the literature for children. It purposes to better the reading of the child, and provides a week of concentrated effort to bring together the right child and the right book. For the twelfth year, librarians, educators, and bookmen co-operate in an effort to arouse an interest in books which will remain an important factor in the life of a child, enriching it in the years to come. For those librarians wishing to observe this national Book week, a book of suggestions has been prepared by the library extension division at Springfield. Both this and books on children's reading may be borrowed from the division, either by librarians or clubs.

While 26 state senators are to be chosen at the election on November 4, the Legislative Voters' league has called attention to the fact that in more than one-half of the senatorial districts of the state limitation of the number of candidates for representative has already determined who will be chosen. The league says: "It is to be regretted that there are real contests for the house in only five Cook county districts, while there are contests in seventeen of the districts downstate."

That 96.1 per cent of the farmers of Illinois are without library service was the statement made by Senator Ewing, a prominent lawyer of Bloomington, at the annual meeting of the Illinois Library association at Moline. He is sponsor of the contract system whereby communities, however small, may provide for book service through a central library already established or by organization of a library district. Many practical addresses and discussions made the sessions valuable.

Members of the Illinois commerce commission, denying a motion of the Chicago Traction line on October 16 at Chicago, retain jurisdiction of questions relative to the removal of street car tracks along the lake front. It is the opinion of Charles W. Hadley, chairman, G. Gale Gilbert, Phil W. Collins and William M. Brinkman that the interests of the Chicago public could best be served by the retention of jurisdiction.

Illinois ranked second in the nation in the number of marriages last year, 84,092, and also in the number of divorces, 15,760, according to a statistical report issued by the United States Department of Commerce. New York led in the number of marriages and Texas in the number of divorces. Nevada ranked highest in ratio of marriages to population, 63.7 to every 1,000 residents, and divorces, 28 per 1,000 of population. The high marriage ratio was attributed by the government to California, it having adopted strict marriage laws.

Lesson for November 2

SIMON PETER, FROM WEAKNESS TO STRENGTH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-29; Luke 22:31-34; John 18:25-27; 21:15-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Weak Man Becomes Strong.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Weak Man Becomes Strong.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How a Weak Man Became Strong.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Christ Gives Strength.

I. Peter Confessing Christ (Mark 8:27-29).
The time was near at hand when Christ should make the supreme offering of himself for sins on the cross. Knowing the tragic experience through which the disciples would pass because of it, he sought to prepare them for it by leading them into the apprehension of the cardinal doctrines of the Christian faith such as: the integrity of his person, atoning death, resurrection, and second coming.

Peter's confession was provoked by two questions of Jesus.

1. "Whom do men say that I am?"
Opinions differed, but all recognized him to be a teacher or a prophet with more than human authority and power.

2. "Whom say ye that I am?"
Jesus persistently claimed to be the very Son of God. He would have his disciples to possess a personal and experiential knowledge of himself as to being God manifest in the flesh.

II. Christ Warning Peter (Luke 22:31-34).

1. He told him of Satan's desire concerning him (v. 31). Satan is constantly striving to destroy men.

2. Christ's prayer for Peter (v. 32). He prayed that Peter's faith fail not, not that he should escape the siftings.

3. Peter's confidence (v. 33).

His fall began when he refused to listen to Christ's words about the cross. Believers begin to weaken when they no longer desire to hear about Christ crucified.

4. Denial announced (v. 34). This was to take place three times before the crowing of the cock.

III. Peter Denying His Lord (John 18:25, 27).

1. Before the servant maid (vv. 15-18).

Peter blundered in attempting to follow Jesus at this time (John 13:36). Presumptuous boldness frequently leads into embarrassing positions. Under the taunt of the Jewish maid he openly denied the Lord.

2. Before the servants and officers (v. 25).

Peter was now warming himself at the enemy's fire. When questioned, he denied his relation to the Lord. Separation from everything that is opposed to the Lord is necessary in order to have a clear testimony (II Cor. 6:14-18).

3. Before the kinsman of Malchus (v. 26).

This man had seen Peter with Jesus in Gethsemane (v. 10) when Peter rashly cut off the ear of Malchus. He put the question straight to Peter, "Did I not see thee in the garden with him?" At the utterance of the third denial, the cock crew, reminding Peter of Christ's warning (Mark 14:72).

IV. Peter's Restoration (John 21:15-17).

Peter had thrice denied his Lord. Therefore, before his reinstatement in the Lord's service he must thrice confess his love for Jesus. In this reinstatement and commission of Peter is set forth the motive and nature of the service which has Christ's approval in all times. Love for Christ, not primarily love for the sheep, proves the genuine shepherd.

1. "Feed my lambs."

The word "feed" as well as "lambs" signifies that the work here enjoined is that of nurturing babes in Christ.

2. "Feed my sheep."

The word here means to feed, guide, correct, and lead the maturer classes of Christians. It carries with it not alone responsibility of feeding, but corrective discipline. Failure will inevitably follow if this be attempted without love.

3. "Feed my sheep."

This doubtless relates to the care of aged Christians. The word "feed" returns somewhat to the meaning as in the first instance where he says, "Feed my lambs," so that the minister's responsibility to care for the aged is equivalent to that of the young. Peter was to express devotion to Christ by a martyr's death.

In God's Husbandry

Heart troubles in God's husbandry are not wounds, but the putting in of the spade before planting the seeds.—H. W. Beecher.

When a man lives up to what he preaches, then his testimony has weight.—Dwight L. Moody.

Taking the line of least resistance is what makes rivers—and some men—crooked.—Churchman.

For TEETHING troubles

FUSSY, fretful . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

Hotter Than Sun

During its brief life, a 20,000-volt spark of electricity is 50 per cent hotter than the sun and 100 times as bright. These conclusions have been reached through an analysis of the electric spark at the University of California with a camera whose shutter operates in one billionth of a second.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

MOKENA

A surprise party was given in honor of Miss Louise Hecht, of Mokena on her birthday, Friday evening, October twenty-fourth, by a group of friends from Chicago. She received many beautiful presents.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. August Zipper and daughter Marge, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Fieroh, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. William Fieroh, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rink and Mr. and Mrs. William Hecht Jr. of Frankfort, and others. After a delicious supper the evening was spent in dancing, and at intervals Mr. Carlson entertained with playing and singing popular songs. A good time was had by all.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hecht Jr. of Frankfort, and Carl and Louise Hecht of Mokena, spent Saturday night in Chicago, seeing WLS radio artists at the Livestock Exposition Arena and spending the rest of the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George May where luncheon was served. Other guests there were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schlutz of Blue Island.

The accident occurred Thursday night. J. V. Hall is doing a lot of improvement work on his property and planted quite a number of trees this week.

October Sets Record For Cold Weather

The coldest October in the memory of the oldest settlers in this region visited this vicinity last week following the rain on Thursday. A snow storm, the first of the season, visited this section Friday when large, heavy flakes of snow fell for a short while, but the snow melted about as fast as it fell. A killing series of frosts followed which practically killed all the flower gardens and what was left of garden truck. Heavy ice was noted in open water tanks and on pools of standing water. The cold snap brought in hurry calls for coal to local coal dealers.

MAN CAN'T SLEEP, GETS NERVOUS HATES PEOPLE

"I Could not sleep and got so nervous I hated everybody. Since taking Vinol, I can sleep 10 hours and feel full of pep all day."—Julius Bender.

For 30 years doctors have prescribed Vinol because it contains important mineral elements of iron, calcium and cod liver peptone. The very FIRST bottle brings sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Nervous, worn-out people are surprised how QUICK Vinol gives new life and pep! Tastes delicious. In Tinley Park by H. C. Vogt.

Just ONE spoonful relieves gas, sour stomach and sick headache. Let Adlerika give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleaning and see how good you feel! R. Hensel Druggist, in Tinley Park by H. C. Vogt.

"Is a Ball So Important?" questions the November two-color safety poster just issued by the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor Club to approximately 40,000 school rooms in Illinois and Indiana.

The poster portrays a pedestrian, about to halt a boy who is dashing into the street to retrieve his football which has rolled into the path of oncoming traffic.

The poster stresses clearly the hazard involved in dashing into the street during the excitement of the play. The inference to be drawn from the picture is that a football is as nothing when compared with the possibilities for being seriously injured, or worse, in the process of recovering it.

The lessons portrayed in these posters are indelibly impressed in the minds of the pupils, by virtue of the fact that they are used as the basis for compositions, class discussions and in other studies which are a part of the regular curriculum.

Live Stock Exhibition Opens Nov. 29th

Chicago's mammoth Thanksgiving season celebration, which for the past 31 years has been otherwise known as the International Live Stock Exposition, will soon be in progress.

This year from November 29 to December 6, the big amphitheatre, adjoining buildings, and pens out at the Chicago Union Stock Yards will, according to the assured prediction of the management of the exposition, be more than ever crammed with the finest products of the farms of not only this continent but in some instances from the very most distant parts of the world.

Vast Improvements Made at Palos Park

Vast new improvements for winter sports and recreational facilities in suburban Cook county's great chain of Forest Preserves, affecting nearly every portion of the Chicago area, were announced the past week by the Cook County Board of Forest Commissioners thru its president Anton J. Cermak. The increased interest on the part of thousands of out-of-door lovers in winter sports brought about the plans.

The great Palos Park wooded area will become the "winter center of Cook County" according to the announcement. Here will be provided a skating pond 300 by 500 feet and several smaller ponds and slides for young children. Two toboggan slides will be rebuilt and a new one created as well.

Utilizing hundreds of old telephone poles, a log shelter which will house 1,000 persons at a time is being put up near 111th street and 96th avenue. This will be near the foot of the immense ski jump, which was so popular last winter, and will insure a chance for everyone to keep warm, as there will be fireplaces, refreshment and comfort facilities provided therein.

Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club In Opening

The new Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club formally opened its permanent headquarters at 154th st. and Cicero ave. last Sunday afternoon with an overflow attendance. Among other prominent democratic leaders the opening was attended by Sheriff John E. Traeger, his son John E. Traeger, democratic candidate for Cook County Assessor as well as William D. Meyer, democratic candidate for sheriff and Joseph B. McDonough who is the democratic choice for County Treasurer.

Praise and applause greeted the organizations president, Wm. Kunkel, who in the keynote speech set forth the lofty ideals and future expectations of accomplishments of the new club. Among other things Mr. Kunkel said, "This club has been organized solely for the benefit of the people of Bremen township. It will not tolerate coalition or barter type of politics. The Jeffersonian principles which underlie both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are good enough for any real American and they shall be the principles governing the activities and the conduct of this club."

Dr. Joseph J. Rein the executive secretary of the club in commenting on the aims and expectations of the future development of the organization pointed to the fact that the Oak Forest Infirmary which employs hundreds of men and women has in the past but a few exceptions failed to give employment to the people of Bremen township in the heart of which the institution is located. In order to assure a solid democratic victory on November 4, Dr. Rein announced that the club has placed twenty-five men and women on its pay-roll who will be at the service of the voters of Bremen township on election day.

Voice of the Volunteers

Answer by the Fire Department to the anonymous party who telephoned the garage Monday morning in regard to the siren blowing too long.

The siren was bought by the people to blow and awaken the firemen so they may get out and assist them in the protection of their property and their insurance ("as you have not used every reasonable effort to protect insured property unless you have called the Fire Department") read your policy, and the fireman are only human and are as hard to awaken as anyone else.

We suppose if your house catches fire at night, you will be so considerate of everybody's sleep that you will let your property and any one else which happens to be close by burn rather than call the Department which will necessitate the blowing of the siren.

Here are a few ways you may use to stop the siren on the garage from blowing:

Donate enough money to put on a paid Fire Department, or about $2500 to put in an alarm system throughout the Village and the Firemen's homes, or make arrangements with the telephone company to connect all firemen's homes on one line and ring them all at one time giving location of fire.

The next time the siren wakens you at 1:15 A. M., put on a few clothes and come out and drag a hose or watch the excitement and you will forget the sleep you lost and maybe we can make a fire fan out of you.

The Firemen went to the community firemen meeting 10 strong Monday night, at Chicago Heights where they witnessed a drill by the Chicago Heights Department with their new Mack Hook and Ladder. Then their regular meeting and four, three round bouts.

Midlothian Department is getting up to date with their new numbered Chicago style badges.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Joseph Bartyzel, Posen resident, who has been ailing for some time, died Saturday morning. She returned only a short time ago from Mercy hospital where she had undergone a week's treatment for goitre. A period of improvement was followed by a rapid relapse.

Burial was from St. Stanislaus church, where solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated by Father Kachnowski, to Mount Olivet Tuesday morning.

The pallbearers, all Posen friends of the deceased woman's husband, were Roman Matuzonek, Michael Bonosiak, John Cecekwicki, Joseph Czajkowski, Anton Domagalski and Vincent Salga.

Mrs. Bartyzel is survived by her husband and one daughter Julia.

Midlothian Board Struggles with Village Finances

Most of the session of the Midlothian board on Tuesday evening was spent in discussing the finances of the village. Only $2500 can be borrowed from the First National bank, and the problem is how to meet past due bills with that amount. Trustee Sidell asked that a delegation confer with the Public Service Company to try to get them to take warrants for the lighting bill and to see if some of the lights on 147th st. cannot be shut off and others placed in the outlying sections of the village.

Although the school board presented plans for stoning Harding ave. and 146th st. to Crawford at a cost of $500 (at no immediate outlay) the board took the stand that nothing could be done at present. So it appears that Midlothian kiddies can wade through mud to their new school.

The police report from April to September showed $778 collected in fines and $750 paid out in salary.

As George Blessing has brought suit against the village, to be tried in Blue Island Saturday, for $505 in salary which he claims and for the loss of his motorcycle, a resolution was passed hiring Attorney Francis A. Harper to represent the village and a court reporter to take testimony. A poll of the board showed that no member considered that Mr. Blessing had a valid claim. Attorney Harper claimed that his term as policeman expired when the new board took office and that checks were made out for full payment of his services.

As the contractor's figures for the drainage of the McIntosh subdivision were considered entirely too high, it was voted to see what could be done to use the tile between Trumbull and Homan ave. The fire department will turn a hose into it and observe the flow into the R. I. ditch to discover if it has been broken through in any place.

Bremen Township Health Topics

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.
Rural Nursing Service of Cook Co.

Friday October 24 was the All-Day Institute of the Rural Nursing Staff. We were favored with several exceptionally good speakers. Dr. Benjamin Goldberg of the board of directors of the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanatorium, spoke on Tuberculosis. One interesting point he brought out was the fact that the Sanatorium is becoming more of a medical and surgical hospital and less a mere boarding place for persons with T. B. The patient is given the medical care needed and returned to his home to be under the care of the field nurse.

Dr. Harold Bachmann of the Chicago Heart Association, spoke on acquired heart disease and mentioned rheumatism. Decayed teeth and diseased tonsils as some of the principal causes of heart diseases in children.

Miss May Kennedy, B. S. R. N., spoke on mental hygiene in a public Health Nurses field. She brought out some good points in studying the problem child, and helping him to get a more normal concept of life; also she suggested that we all study our own actions and duly consider "why" we do many of the things we do.

Dr. Benjamin L. Sargent, Pediatrician of the Childrens Memorial hospital spoke on health centers as Parents Education Institutions where mothers go with their children to acquire correct information on child feeding and child training.

Dr. Martin Zeisler spoke on the control of contagious disease, principally from the health officers point of view.

There were over a hundred persons attended the institute. Many nurses from the Chicago health department, the entire staff of nurses from Du Page county, and a large representation from the various P. T. A. groups.

James Testard Arrested Again

Once again James Testard, proprietor of the Testard roadhouse at 147th and Western, has appeared before Judge Synakiewicz, charged with disorderly conduct. This time the complainant is his ex-wife, Charlotte Testard.

The latter visited the roadhouse Monday afternoon bent on mischief toward a lady whom she suspected had supplanted her in Mr. Testard's affections. A brawl between ex-husband and ex-wife, ensuing the county police at Homewood were called.

Deputies Salvatori and Elhenicky found the argument at its height on their arrival. Mrs. Testard's insistence that they search the house for the woman at the bottom of the dispute, they responded they could do nothing without a warrant. Whereupon Mrs. Testard telephoned the sheriff's office for assistance.

The question was finally settled by both parties signing complaints against each other. They were both arrested for disorderly conduct and appeared before Judge Synakiewicz Tuesday morning. Continuances to Monday November third, were allowed.

LIONS MEET MONDAY

Lions will gather in their den and roar again next Monday night. "Every member present at every meeting."

3. Two million, five hundred thousand dollar bond issue for the forest preserves of Cook county to complete work already started and planned.

4. Vote on attitude towards prohibition law under three headings: (1) Do you favor repeal of the Volstead Act? (2) Do you favor modification of the Volstead Act? (3) Do you favor repeal of the state search and seizure law?

Balliff and clerk.
Rodney H. Brandon, Supreme Dictator Loyal Order of Moose and Director of the State Department of Public Welfare, Tuesday night over radio station WJJD at Mooseheart, appealed to Illinois voters to vote "yes" on the State Wide System of Conservation and Forest Preserves and Public Recreation Grounds Ballot on November 4th.

Mr. Brandon emphasized the fact that the bond issue will be paid for entirely by the hunters and fishers, by way of state license money without one cent from taxes. He declared that the adoption of the bond issue would provide a forest preserve a song and game bird sanctuary, and a public playground of 2,000 acres in every county in the state, open to all, rich and poor.

"Unless you are wealthy and have your own club," said Mr. Brandon, "when you start out today in your automobile with your family for a recreation in the great outdoors, or a hunting or a fishing trip, you are met on every hand with 'Keep Out', 'No Trespassing', 'No Fishing', and 'No Swimming' signs. Try to imagine what opportunity your children's children will have to become acquainted with the great outdoors unless you now provide for them."

Letters to the Editor

Resents Attack Upon Sheriff Traeger

In a recent communication received at this office from Dr. Joseph J. Rein, Executive Secretary of The Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club, Inc. in which he launches a bitter protest against the apparent "back-slap" political motives underlying the citation for contempt of court of Sheriff John E. Traeger by Judge John A. Sharbaro of the Municipal Court of Chicago, we quote Dr. Rein as follows:

"It is with a feeling akin to actual resentment with which the citizenship of Cook County, regardless of political faction, greet the recent apparently nefarious 'back-slap' political move directed by Judge Sharbaro against the honestly-earned fair name of Sheriff John E. Traeger in the conduct of his office. Especially so, as the attack coming on the eve of the Fall election is a flimsy veiled attempt to detract from the election possibilities of the sheriff's son, John E. Traeger, who is the Democratic candidate for Cook County Assessor."

"The citation for contempt of court through which this attack is launched is based upon the recent escape (?) of two prisoners serving sentence at the Oak Forest Infirmary jail, and hinges itself on the allegation that the sheriff acted in bad faith by transferring prisoners convicted of a felony to the above mentioned institution."

"I shall not go into the intricate legalities surrounding the law of imprisonment, mitamus, etc., but it is probably, a well known fact that in order to expedite our judicial system that in a certain type of felony case, upon the plea of guilty being entered by the defendant, other things being equal, an arrangement is entered into between the prosecuting attorney and the court in which the charge is changed from a felony to a misdemeanor carrying consequently a lighter punishment. Prisoners of this type may be moved to the Oak Forest Infirmary jail at the discretion of the sheriff. The mitamus under which this type of prisoner is imprisoned contains no record of either the change of charge, nor any inkling of the former criminal record (continued on back page)

Bowling League

The bowlers spent another enjoyable evening last Friday at the Roberts Recreation Parlors. There were several surprises, the most important being the number of women that turned out. From the enthusiasm shown by them the prospects for a Ladies Bowling League in the near future seem very good.

The other surprises were the increases in scores over the previous week. Sidell led for the evening with an average of 154.

Standings	games	average
Oehlhausen	8	147
Wirtz	8	146
Sidell	8	136
Brossard	4	132

Thormahlen	8	117
Berg	4	115
Pacatte	4	104
Nelson	4	103
Spoerer	4	93

The permanent teams are to be formed in a very short time so that now is the time to start and get your average on the books.

At this time of the year the Legion start their new year. 1929-30 members are urged to pay their 1930-31 dues at their earliest convenience, and prospective members are urged to join. The Legion is an asset to any ex-service man.

We have a great deal of service work to do, and it is the duty of all able-bodied ex-service men to join in a helping hand to those of our comrades who need help. Regular meeting nights second and fourth Wednesdays of each month. Location: 147th street and 41st avenue. Time: 8 o'clock.

Legion members are at present decorating the inside of their headquarters. All Legion members are urged to be present Thursday evening October 30th, also 9 a. m. November 2nd, to assist in this work. We'll all enjoy it when done, so let's all help do it. We want to make our headquarters a real home, a place to be proud of.

Should there be any ex-service men in our community who would like information, advice and help in regard to Government Insurance, filing of claims etc., call on Midlothian Post 691, who will be glad to help.

We are at your service.

BARTHELMESS IN AIR STORY AT LYRIC

Richard Barthelmess, First National-Vitaphone star, makes his first appearance in an air story in "The Dawn Patrol," which comes to the Lyric Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

It is a highly dramatic mirror of those early years of the World War "schoolboy" flyers in the British air service who were compelled to face highly organized German aces, when their own mediocre equipment was forced to fight against the more modern enemy planes.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. plays an important supporting role, while other parts are in the hands of Neil Hamilton, Gardner James, Clyde Cook, James Finlayson, Frank McHugh, Wm. Janney, Edmund Breon and others.

"Men of the North," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's adventure romance of the North woods, is the attraction coming Sunday to the Lyric Theatre, with Gilbert Roland and Barbara Leonard heading a large cast of well known players.

Personally directed by Hal Roach the new picture is based on a powerful dramatic plot by Willard Mack.

The play deals with the adventure of Louis the Fox, French Canadian trapper, wrongly suspected of theft and dogged through the snows by the Northwest Mounted sergeant, Moon-ey. His love for the Montreal heroine, and his adventures in the snow lands, the rescue of his pursuer at the risk of his own life and freedom and other incidents abound in the vivid romance of the French Canadian.

Everett Marshall will appear Monday and Tuesday with Bebe Daniels in "Dixiana" a glamorous music drama.

OUR INVITATION

This week we invite Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Hall of Oak Forest to be our guests at the Lyric Theatre. Last week we omitted to mention that passes were given to Mr. and Mrs. Frank (Scotty) Mech, of Posen.

Markham Again Shelves Kedzie Water Project

Markham again shelved the petition for water mains on Kedzie ave., at a meeting of the board Thursday evening of last week. It was indicated that if the residents of the north-west end of the village wanted water that it might be made available from the Posen mains. The board takes the attitude that the improvement would benefit Midlothian more than Markham and that too great a hardship would be worked on holders of acreage.

A little joke at the expense of the county was appreciated when a communication was read saying that the county could not take over the maintenance of Kedzie ave. until certain conditions had been met—as a matter of fact the county repair crew has already completed the work to be done on the road. Harvey was paid $8,000 on the water account.

The police report showed the magistrate some $327 in arrears so the village attorney was instructed to write him at once.

Bank Robbers Keep County Police on Wire

Nine to ten in the morning if things keep up, will become red letter hours in the life of Deputy Leppin of the County Police at the Homewood Station.

Answering the phone last Thursday morning at 9:40 he got the news of the four thousand dollar holdup of the Farmers State Bank at Beecher. Twenty-four hours later, at 9:10 to be exact, Friday morning, the phone again rang. This time it was the Monee police and a six thousand dollar holdup at the Farmers State Bank there.

Unless a stop is put to it, Deputy Leppin on answering the phone at the above hours, will probably open the conversation by asking: "This is the Farmer's State Bank of where?"

Bishop Sheil Confirms 130 at St. Stanislaus

Last Sunday the Rt. Reverend Bernard Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, administered confirmation to one hundred and thirty members of St. Stanislaus Parish. There are sixty seven children and sixty three adults in the ceremony which took place in the parish church at seven o'clock in the evening.

Each recipient of the sacrament was sponsored by an adult member of the parish. Bishop Sheil was assisted by Father Kachnowski, pastor of St. Stanislaus church, Father Theodore Gross of Blue Island, Father J. Grembowski of Phoenix and Father Francis Tyreha of Chicago.

A list of the names of those confirmed will be published in next week's issue.

School Board Buys Seats for Auditorium

The school board of district 143 ordered 500 steel-and-wood seats for the auditorium of the Midlothian school at their special meeting on Wednesday of last week. The board also ordered window shades.

A large part of the time of the board was taken by a delegation from Robbins, who asked that a 14 year old boy who had struck a teacher, be re-instated. The two colored members of the board were roundly abused by the delegation, it is said. The boy was not reinstated.

Demons Win by Forfeit Score Being 1-0

The Midlothian Demons, won last Sunday's football game with the Goviers, a fast moving Chicago team, originating from 79th and Stony Island ave., by forfeit, as the Goviers failed to be present at the Demons field in Robertson's Park at the stated time of the kick-off and according to rule V, National Football rules, the Demons won with a score of 1-0.

The Demons having no opponents to play, were divided in two teams by Coach Hulbert. These two teams battled together for a few hours and by the looks of the limping players and according to the remarks of several of the team on Monday morning it must have been a tough scrimmage. The Demons play the South Side Stars of Blue Island Sunday, Nov. 2 at their home field, 149th near Crawford. Kick off at 2:30 p. m. Be sure and be out and root for your home team.

Petition for Separation Presented

The petition calling for the withdrawal of Posen from school district 143 was filed with the Bremen township school trustees last Thursday. It is reported that the action will be contested by Midlothian.

Boundries of the proposed district are drawn up as follows: south limits, 157th st. (Markham); east limits, Western ave.; north limits, 135th st. to the I. H. B. tracks, south along the I. H. B. to 139th st., west to Sacramento ave. south west along the Rock Island to Kedzie ave.; the west limits are Kedzie ave.

The Bremen Township school trustees will have an open meeting at the Len Small school from 3 to 5 on Saturday afternoon to argue the question of the separation of the school district. It is very important that every interested citizen be present and express his opinion.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISER

THE INDIVIDUAL YET NEEDED BY BUSINESS

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers
Association

SOME seem to think that the day of the individual in business has passed. But they are wrong. While the individual may not attract such outstanding attention as he did in the days of old when institutions were conducted on a smaller scale, he nevertheless is to be found in any large corporation, dominating the situation, giving orders here, co-operating there and shouldering the responsibility of keeping a large group of lieutenants, captains and privates working in unison and moving forward under the banner of progress. And all of these are held accountable to the public because the public has entered into a partnership agreement with the corporation through purchase of stock.

Welfare of Workers
Even in the gigantic mergers that have taken place within the last two years there remains more than ever the necessity for a leader, an aggressive personality, whose duty it is to see that basic principles are not forgotten, that the rights and privileges of the individual workers and the customers they serve are as well provided for as in the smaller business units.

It is gratifying to note that our corporations are giving more and more concern to the welfare of their workers. Numerous benefit organizations have been formed, opportunities offered for advancement of education and position, hospital service established and insurance and retirement pensions provided.

This general humanitarian movement in reality is the outgrowth of analysis, which has disclosed the need of improving the well-being of our individual workers, realizing at the same time that our institutions will benefit.

PREPAREDNESS IN BUSINESS

By R. S. HECHT,
American Bankers Association.

My observations for many years, both as an employee and as an executive, have convinced me that the reason some men and women go ahead and others do not is that some keep themselves constantly prepared to accept and fulfill larger duties and responsibilities as they offer, and some do not.

Grant, as we must, that there is a certain element of luck in the conditions under which opportunity for promotion comes to different men and women, we nevertheless must also see that it is each individual's own state of preparedness which determines his ability to seize opportunity if and when it comes, and having seized it, to succeed in meeting the greater demands which it inevitably places upon him.

Real advancement never means going ahead to easier tasks, but always to harder ones. Opportunity for advancement is worthless unless in accepting it you are able to carry with you the abilities and qualifications that prepare you to meet the heavier exactions that are an inherent part of opportunity.

It is far better to go into action in the field of enlarged responsibility prepared and qualified, rather than that you and the institution you work for shall be exposed to the hazard of your having to build up to new responsibilities after having assumed them.

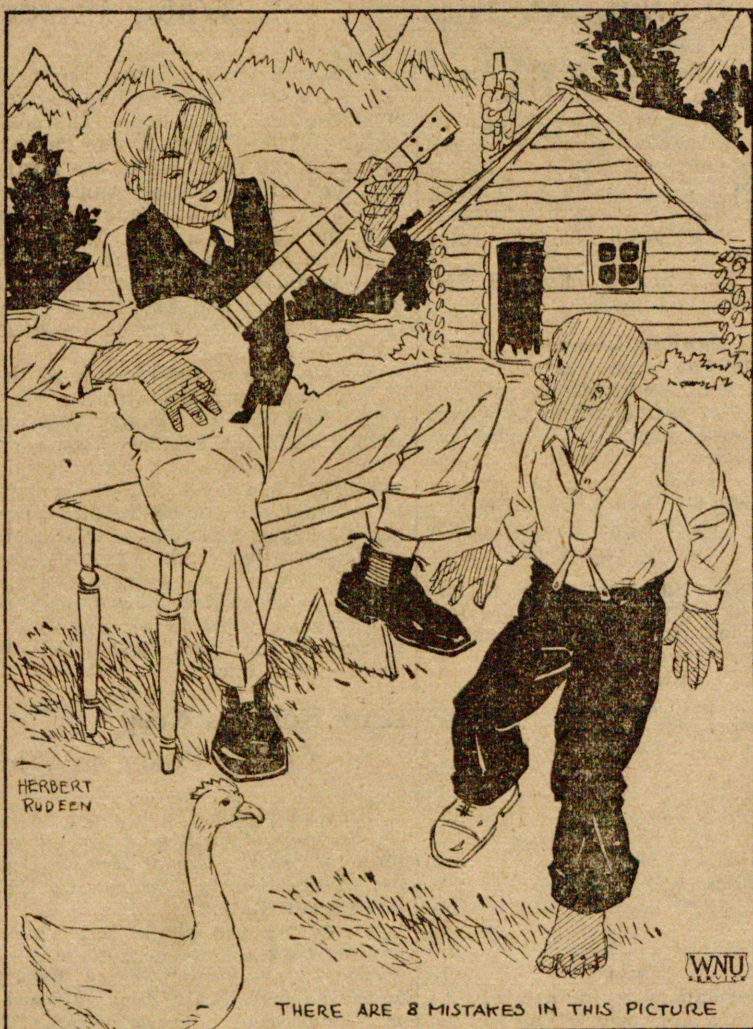

The new spirit of all business seeks to prepare its people in advance through education for the higher duties it holds in store for them.

Bank Bandits Active

The greatest number of bandit raids on American banking ever recorded in the figures of the protective department of the American Bankers Association were reported during the six months ending last February. Bank members of the association reported for investigation 311 forgery cases, 107 holdup robberies, 16 burglaries, 2 sneak thefts and 8 mortgage swindles while non-member banks, numbering less than half the total enrolled in the association, suffered 36 holdup robberies and 9 burglaries, non-members being burglarized or held up once for every 39 banks, as compared with once for every 164 member banks. The association detective agents caused the arrest of 143 of the 236 bank criminals apprehended during the period covered.

The association's report on these conditions urges support of the movement to provide city police departments with radio-equipped cruising automobiles which have proved particularly effective in Cleveland and Detroit in the broadcasting of alarms and the closing in on criminals immediately after or even in the midst of the perpetration of crimes. Last year the average time elapsed between the receipt of radio calls by these cars and the 1325 arrests which followed was one minute and forty-two seconds, the report says.

Better Breakfasts

It takes only a touch to make a better breakfast. Cereal, eggs and coffee are almost standard. Add to this fresh fruit and a new kind of biscuit, and you have a meal instead of an incident, a pleasant memory to start the day right. Here is one of those better breakfasts that make all the difference between real enjoyment and routine:

Watermelon Wedge
Ready-to-Eat Cereal with Top
Milk or Cream
Soft-Cooked Eggs
Blueberry Biscuits
Coffee

This is just the time of year to start a thirsty day with a luscious wedge of watermelon, and evaporated milk can be used on the cereal and also with the coffee, if desired. But it is the blueberry biscuits that add the memorable touch. Here is the way to make them.

Blueberry Biscuits

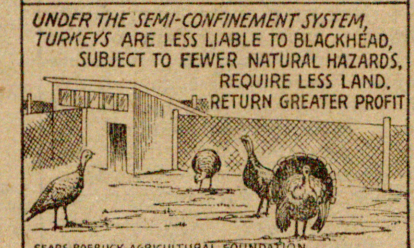

Sift two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt and two tablespoons sugar. Cut in, or work in with finger tips four tablespoons shortening. Add seven-eighths cup diluted evaporated milk to make a dough soft enough to drop. Use two-thirds cup of either fresh or canned blueberries. Have them well washed and dried, if fresh, and well drained, if canned. Add quickly and carefully to the dough, and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet or in muffin tins. Bake in a hot oven, 450°, for 12 to 15 minutes.*

Taking the Turkey Off the Range

Contrary to popular belief, successful experiments indicate that the turkey can be profitably taken from the range to a smaller and more modern domain where it has a greater chance of survival than when allowed to roam at will, says the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

Turkey eggs hatched in incubators, poults brooded artificially, reared on limited range in rotated lots, fed regularly from the second day to maturity, on a carefully planned diet and kept entirely separate from chickens, summarizes the new method of raising turkeys in semi-confinement. Under this system, two hundred poults can be raised on an acre and land ordinarily used for turkey grazing is saved for other crops.

When turkeys roam the farm, mingling with chickens which often carry the dreaded blackhead disease, losses frequently are so heavy as to eat up all profits. When turkeys are raised in semi-confinement, they are put on ground free from infection and are kept away from chickens altogether.

Experiments conducted by the North Dakota Agricultural college showed that the feed cost of turkeys grown in confinement from June 1 to November 23 averaged less than 8 cents a pound. Other production costs, including initial cost of the egg, incubation cost, and brooder cost, probably run from $1 to $1.50 per poult. This should leave a substantial margin of profit in well-managed flocks, according to the Foundation.

Commissioners

Has earned the record of having served more faithfully and more constructively than any predecessor.

Has extended the charities of the County by improving methods and operations at the County Hospital, Oak Forest Poor Farm, Juvenile Court and Detention Home, Poor Relief in the Homes, Summer Camps, Nursing Service, Dental Clinic and Children's Hospital.

His Tax Record: He has steadily opposed all measures that meant increased taxation, and is now leading the fight against a State Income Tax; fought for and gained relief for Cook County; refused to increase the tax rate as the State did, and voluntarily ordered a 10% reduction in taxes in 1924.

A RECORD LIKE THIS DESERVES PUBLIC SUPPORT NOVEMBER 4TH.

VOTE "YES" ON THE FOREST PRESERVE BOND ISSUE NOV. 4th

Do You Want Modern Shelters

THE millions who visit the Cook County Forest Preserves each year are entitled to all of the conveniences and comforts that can be given them from the funds available.

Many improvements have been made from savings brought about by economical and efficient administration of Forest Preserve Departments.

Only by the approval of the Bond Issue on the Ballot November 4th can a general program of improving the Forest Preserves generally be brought about.

There is no project that can do more for the general public than this — insuring health, comfort, and convenience to more than ten million visitors annually.

Or Is This Satisfactory?

TEN REASONS WHY:

1. Health must be protected by modern sanitary facilities.
2. Pure water must be supplied throughout the district.
3. Shelter Houses must be constructed for protection in bad weather.
4. Swamp lands must be drained to prevent Mosquito breeding.
5. Parking spaces must be constructed to prevent damage to automobiles and buses.
6. Control of water conditions and sand beaches must be provided to protect the lives and health of men, women and children.
7. More picnic areas with adequate tables and facilities must be developed.
8. Playfields must be graded, drained, and constructed.
9. Disease epidemics must be prevented.
10. Make the 32,000 Acres healthy and safe for all.

THERE are times in life, particularly in politics, when it is wise to follow the Biblical injunction—"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." This is such a time.

In the present campaign, efforts are being made to becloud the real issues, distort the facts, and by abuse and invective to lay all the woes of the world at the door of the Republican party.

It is our belief that the people of Will County are too intelligent, too well informed, to be fooled by such misrepresentations.

PROSPERITY

YOU are told, for instance, that the Republican party is to blame for present business conditions and for the unfortunate growth in unemployment. Yet for the first time in the history of this country a president in office—Herbert Hoover, Republican—was asked to address the convention of the American Federation of Labor. Why? Because the officials of this great organization know that our temporary "depression" is due to WORLD-WIDE causes and would have been MUCH WORSE had it not been for the prompt and unparalleled action of President Hoover in demanding that present wage scales be maintained. President Hoover has been working in sympathy and in harmony with the labor leaders of the United States—and has their admiration and support.

Since the days of Abraham Lincoln, this country has enjoyed prosperity such as no other nation has ever known, yet in that entire period we have had but two Democratic presidents—Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson, and during the administrations of both of these DEMOCRATIC presidents we had depressions and unemployment far greater, far more serious, and of a far more lasting character than that we are undergoing today. These depressions, moreover, were DOMESTIC depressions—caused by the lowering of the tariff, and were in no sense due to world-wide causes such as exist today.

You are asked to forget the soup kitchens of the Cleveland era, and the bread-lines of the Wilson period—you are asked to forget the 60 years of Republican prosperity—and turn your back upon the Republican party which has always been, and will always be, the party of prosperity.

TARIFF

YOU are told that the Republican tariff is too high; that much of our present trouble is due to this fact, yet it is admitted that it is because of the protection afforded by this tariff that we have been able to maintain our high standard of living against the cheap labor of Europe. It is also a fact that it was the delay in passing the present tariff—brought about by Democratic obstructionists—that caused the only sincere criticism that has been made concerning it. If the tariff itself was at fault, we would not have the declining prices now existing. Any school boy knows that. It is through the present tariff that we may confidently expect a speedy return of prosperity. Don't let anybody fool you as to that!

LAWLESSNESS

YOU are told that the Republican party is responsible for the present reign of lawlessness and crime. (The reason you are given is that the Republican party is responsible for the Prohibition Amendment, and the Amendment is responsible for the increase in crime.)

If this is true, then the Democrats are imposing upon your intelligence, for it was during a DEMOCRATIC administration that the Prohibition Amendment was passed by Congress and ratified by the states. You are, however, supposed to forget these facts. So—just to refresh your memory—here they are:

PROHIBITION

THE 18th Amendment to the Constitution (the Prohibition Amendment) was introduced into the senate of the United States by the Hon. Morris Sheppard, DEMOCRATIC senator from Texas. It was passed by the senate on August 1, 1917, at a time when the HON. JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS, now asking your votes on a "wet" platform, represented Illinois in the senate of the United States. In fact, Mr. Lewis was the "whip" of that body. Subsequently, the Amendment was passed by the House of Representatives and ratified by the necessary thirty-six states.

In other words, the Prohibition Amendment was introduced by a DEMOCRATIC senator during a DEMOCRATIC administration (President Wilson's); was ratified by all of the recognized DEMOCRATIC states; was proclaimed a law by a DEMOCRAT (President Wilson's acting secretary of state), and the DEMOCRATS were so proud of it that several pens were used in signing the proclamation, so that William Jennings Bryan, a DEMOCRAT, and Senator Sheppard, a DEMOCRAT, might each have one as a memento.

While the Republicans believe that Prohibition is an issue in this campaign only insofar as the Referendum is concerned, it is somewhat amusing to hear ex-Senator Lewis tell the people of Illinois what he will do to REPEAL a law that was ORIGINATED and PASSED when he—the same Senator Lewis—was "whip" of the senate to which he now aspires to return. If he can help repeal it now, why couldn't he have helped stop it then?

When it comes to suppression of crime, no man in the history of the United States has shown such executive leadership as President Hoover. His conference on crime, and his Crime Commission, speak for themselves!

FARM RELIEF

THE Democrats of the country have had two great opportunities to assist the farmers. One was during the administration of President Cleveland; the other during the administration of President Wilson. In both cases (except for the stimulus of war prices during a portion of President Wilson's administration), farm prices and farm values suffered tremendously.

President Hoover has unquestionably done more for the farmers of the United States than any other chief executive, and time will PROVE it.

The farmers of the United States are overwhelmingly Republican. Why? Because they know that the Republican tariff and Republican principles offer them their greatest safeguard. They cannot be fooled.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

THE Republican party has always followed the doctrine of George Washington to "Beware of foreign entanglements." It will continue to do so.

THE DEEP WATERWAY

THE present REPUBLICAN administration has appropriated $7,500,000 for the completion of the Lakes-to-Gulf Canal, a project that was conceived by REPUBLICANS and has had their support during every phase of its construction.

THE HIGHWAY TO PROSPERITY

THE Republican party is historically the party of PROSPERITY. The present depression is merely a detour, brought about by world-wide conditions. It will continue only if the present administration is hampered. Sixty years of prosperity under the Republican party should not be forgotten because of twelve months of readjustment. "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good!"

Statements and Suggestions As To Public Measures

Pursuant to Statute, the following statements and suggestions have been prepared relative to the substance of the various public measures which will be presented to the voters of Will County at the General Election to be held November 4, 1930.

ALBION F. DELANDER, County Clerk.

Act to Amend Sections 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 and 15½ of "An Act to Revise the Law With Relation to Banks and Banking" and to Add Section 11½ Thereof. This Act was prepared by the Banking Commission created by Act of the 59th General Assembly. It amends fourteen sections of the Banking Act and adds one new section. In addition to the substantive changes in the banking law, other changes are made in phraseology merely to clarify the language. The adoption of these amendments will strengthen banking in Illinois and will give to the supervising authorities more rigid enforcement powers. The proposed changes are set out below by sections. Section 1. No changes are made in this section except the addition of the following words at the end of the section, "and shall be subject to all of the provisions of this Act." Section 2. The present law requires the Auditor to issue a permit to organize when application is made to him. A new provision is added directing him to examine the application and investigate the truth of the statements and to issue a permit to organize only if the applicants are entitled to such permit. Shares of the capital stock are now required to be of $100.00 each. The amendment permits them to be not less than $10.00 nor more than $100.00 each. Section 4. The officers appointed by the directors must be provided for by the by-laws. At present each director is required to hold not less than ten shares which must be filed with the cashier of the bank during the term as director. The amount of these shares is changed in the Act to $100.00. A provision is added with regard to special meetings of the directors. Such meetings shall be held, as provided by the by-laws, or upon call of the Auditor or bank examiner, upon twelve hours notice by personal service or by mailing to each director the quorum required for meetings is a majority of the directors instead of being left to be provided for by the by-laws. Section 5. Before the Auditor issues the certificates to commence business, each bank is required to have a surplus of not less than ten per cent (10%) of the capital and a reserve for operating expenses of at least five per cent (5%) of the capital; the Auditor is authorized to withhold the certificate when he is not satisfied as to the truth of any statements contained in the affidavit of any subscriber or if a commission or fee has been paid in connection with the sale of stock of the bank. These requirements are new. Section 7. The fee for examining the quarterly report and preparing it for publication is changed from $10.00 to $5.00. Section 8. A new provision is added forbidding any bank or officer or employee to make any loan or grant any gratuity to any bank examiner. Penalty for violation of this provision is fixed at a fine of not more than $5,000.00 or imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year. Section 9. The provision as to branch banks is changed. Branch banks are forbidden in this or any other state or country, but branch offices or additional offices or agencies for the purpose of conducting any of the bank's business are prohibited only in this State. Section 10. In fixing the limitations upon loans made by a bank, there are a number of transactions which in the present law are not considered as money loaned. One of these, the purchase of or loaning money in exchange for evidences of indebtedness secured by written pledge covering livestock, is omitted entirely. Another one relating to the purchase of or loaning money in exchange for evidences of indebtedness secured by loan or trust deed upon productive real estate is changed so that the buildings upon such real estate are included in the valuation which is required to be double the amount of the debt secured. The total liabilities of any one person, partnership or corporation is now limited to not more than the amount of the capital stock of the bank. This is changed so that it may not exceed one-half the amount of the capital stock and unimpaired surplus. A provision which excludes from the computation of the total liabilities of any person, corporation or firm, liabilities which are secured by collateral approved by the Auditor and deposited with him or secured by a bond filed with and approved by him, is repealed. The provision authorizing the Auditor to grant a permit to a bank to carry excessive loans if the bank furnished the Auditor a bond to secure such bank against loss on account of such loans, is also repealed. Section 11. The minimum capital stock now permitted outside of municipalities, and in the smaller municipalities is $25,000.00, this is increased to $50,000.00. The provisions relative to impairment of the capital stock is considerably changed, mostly by the insertion of additional provisions. The board of directors is directed to sell a sufficient amount of capital stock of any stockholder who refuses after 30 days' notice to pay an assessment ordered to make good an impairment in the capital stock. The provision directing the Auditor to enter suit against stockholders to make good an impairment is repealed and the period of 30 days during which the impairment must be made good before the Auditor is to act is changed to 60 days. There is added an additional clause authorizing the Auditor to appoint a receiver if a bank is operating with an insufficient portion of its assets in cash or readily convertible securities. The Auditor is authorized to take possession of the bank and all property for purpose of reorganization without a receivership. The action of a receiver in selling and compounding debts and in selling property of the bank is now required to be upon the order of a court of competent jurisdiction, this is changed to a court of record of the county in which the bank is located. There is added a provision requiring the receiver to file a copy of all reports with the Auditor and such other reports and records as the Auditor may require. The receiver is given power to sue and defend in his own name and he may, under the direction of the Auditor, surrender to customers of the bank private papers and valuables. He shall terminate all trusteeships, guardianships, conservatorships and appointments as executor or administrator held by the bank as soon as possible. He is authorized to redeem collateral hypothecated by the bank when such action is approved by the Auditor. After the appointment of a receiver, claims against the bank are to be presented to the clerk of the court if a suit has been commenced for the dissolution of the bank and the action of the court allowing or disallowing such claims is to be an adjudication by the court. There is a provision added requiring the receiver to deposit all monies collected by him daily in a depository selected by the Auditor. Securities by such depository and the payment of interest upon rates fixed by the Auditor, but not less than two per cent (2%) are provided for. Provision is made for the filing of claims and PRO-RATA distribution of dividends. All books and records after the receivership are to be turned over to the Auditor for preservation. Provision is made for enforcing the individual liability of shareholders, the expenses of the proceedings to be paid out of the funds collected. Any receiver, when it is necessary, may, with the approval of the Auditor, purchase or redeem property in which the bank had an interest by reason of bond, mortgage or otherwise. At present a majority of the creditors may nominate a person to be appointed receiver, this is changed so as to require two-thirds of the creditors for such nomination. Section 11½. This is a new section and prohibits the withdrawal of any portion of the bank's capital, also prohibits dividends if losses have been sustained equal to the undivided profits on hand. Debts upon which interest is past due for a period of six months, unless well secured and in process of collection, are to be considered bad debts. Before a dividend is permitted, one-tenth part of the profits since the last dividend must be carried into the surplus fund until it amounts to 20% of the capital stock. Section 12. The provision relating to changes in the capital stock, number of directors, etc., and the limitation against an increase in the number of directors, managers or trustees to more than twenty-one is repealed, and there is added a provision forbidding the change of location of a bank from one municipality to another or from unincorporated territory to a municipality or to a place more than five miles from its present location, any changes in the corporate franchise must be approved by the Auditor. There is also added a provision that any bank for the protection of depositors and other creditors may, with the approval of the Auditor and by a two-thirds vote of its directors sell any or all of its assets to another bank, if said bank assumes the liabilities other than liabilities to stockholders. Section 13. This section relates to consolidation of banks, and is amended to require that such consolidation be approved by the Auditor, and that a complete record of the proceedings, list of stockholders, and all details of such consolidation be submitted to him and be found to be true and complete before such approval, he must also decide that a sufficient amount is dedicated to the business of the proposed consolidation. The Auditor is given power to make an examination of a consolidated corporation, the expense to be paid by the corporation. Section 14. Changes heretofore made in location, capital stock, number of directors, etc., under other Acts of the General Assembly are validated. Sales, settlements and compositions heretofore made by any receiver with the approval of the court of record of the county in which the bank was located are validated. Dividends heretofore made on claims which have been proven to the Auditor or adjudicated in any court are made legal. Section 15. A provision is added for the termination of the affairs of a bank upon the making of a contract in writing approved by the Auditor by which another bank assumes the obligations of the first bank. Section 15½. The only change is the omission of the provision relating to transmitting money to foreign countries and buying and selling foreign money, which was held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. The ballot to be used in the submission of the adoption of these amendments to the Banking Law shall be printed on a ballot separate from the ballots containing the names of candidates to be voted for at the election and shall be in substantially the following form: BANKING LAW BALLOT. For "An Act to amend sections 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, and 15½ of 'An Act to revise the law with relation to banks and banking,' approved June 23, 1919, as amended, and to add said Act a new section, to be known as section 11½." Against "An Act to amend sections 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, and 15½ of 'An Act to revise the law with relation to banks and banking,' approved June 23, 1919, as amended, and to add said Act a new section, to be known as section 11½."

Act to Amend Sections 1 and 4 of "An Act Concerning Jurors, and To Repeal Certain Acts Therein Named," Approved February 11, 1874. The amendment to section 1 provides that the county board in making up the jury list shall include therein legal voters of both sexes, thus placing women voters on the jury list the same as men. The amendment to section 4 provides that women shall be exempted from jury service under certain circumstances, but does not change the law relating to exemption from jury service in any other particular. The adoption of this Act would give to women legal voters the right to serve on juries with certain special exemptions from jury service. The ballot to be used in the submission of the adoption of this Act shall be printed on a ballot separate from the ballots containing the names of candidates to be voted for at the election and shall be in substantially the following form: Shall an Act to amend "An Act concerning jurors, and to repeal certain Acts therein named," providing that women legal voters shall have the right to serve on juries and for certain exemptions from jury service, be adopted? Yes No This Act will not become a law unless it receives the affirmative vote of a majority of all the votes cast upon the proposition. Proposed Amendment to Sections 1, 2, 9 and 10 of Article IX of the Constitution of the State of Illinois. This proposed amendment to the Constitution, if adopted, will give the General Assembly power to enact laws relating to revenue that will relieve many of the restrictions that have existed under the present Constitutional provisions on revenue and allow a tax on intangibles that will reduce the burden of taxation that has heretofore existed on homes, real estate and farm land. The proposed amendment shall be submitted to the voters on the ballot containing the names of candidates for office, as provided by section 15½ of "An Act to provide for the printing and distribution of ballots at public expense, and for the nomination of candidates for

THE NEWEST MODES FROM PARIS

Now that the French models for the coming season have arrived, there is no longer any doubt that all the preliminary news about a richer and elegant mode had a good foundation on fact. Even though the past months have accustomed the women to soft feminine lines, the new French frocks and coats reveal a very decided departure in the direction of still more elaboration. The modes also have a tendency towards a riot of color. Colored frocks will be considerably in demand, if one would be in style. To keep up with the demand in colored dresses, there has been placed on the market an indispensable accessory for the well groomed and fastidious woman. She may now purchase Kleinert's dress shields in any color to match her gown. She will not be worried about some inharmonious glare showing thru a sheer garment. The colored shields have been made possible by the recent discovery of a chemist, who has found that it is possible to make a dye that is absolutely fast and can be guaranteed against discoloration or fading. The manufacturers of the Kleinert dress shield maintain offices in Paris, where a style committee notifies the American headquarters immediately when new fashion trends are noted. In this way it is possible for them to keep a stock on hand of just what the public wants. The photographs which come to us from Paris show two French fashions for fall. (Herbert Photos, N. Y.)

The Sunbeam Iron is $7.50
The Ironing Board is .01
Both are $7.51

(This is a regular $11 value)

THE SUNBEAM IRON heats quickly and keeps an even temperature from tip to heel. It weighs six pounds and is finished in non-tarnishing chromeplate. An air-cooled handle prevents blistered hands. [A handy steel fireproof case for the iron is one dollar extra].

THE IRONING BOARD is light but very sturdy. When set up, the legs are locked so they cannot collapse. The ironing surface is 12 inches by 48 inches and there is a 30 inch "open end". A push of the thumb releases the lock spring and legs fold in. The entire board can hide in the broom closet or slide behind a door.

One dollar down will begin to pay for this handy combination the "Little by Little" way.

It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God.—Matthew 19:24.

If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give it to the poor.—Matthew 19:21.

Comment: When Jesus says poor at this point, I think that Jesus means the members of his Holy Brotherhood of the Kingdom. I am chiefly interested in the social passion that pervades the Gospel as a sacred fire. This aspect of the great Message has never been emphasized sufficiently. (Compiled by the Bible Guild.)

[if such record is existent] of the prisoner. It can be readily seen that the area of discrimination allowed the sheriff in this type of case is practically nil.

"Recently Sheriff Traeger, or 'Honest John Traeger' as he is affectionately known, celebrated his fifty year 'Golden Jubilee' of public service that might well be the envy of most living American public servants as well as that of a great number that have passed beyond.

"Fortunately, Sheriff Traeger has built unto himself a monument of honest public service that shall go into posterity together with the record of Paddy Carr, Bob Sweitzer and other immortals of 'the Great Cook County Democracy' which shall survive in the memories of those still to come, long after the names of his accusers are forgotten.

"This untimely, if not badly launched attack cannot help but afford an obnoxious stench to the nostrils of any real citizen, be he democrat or republican."

John E. Traeger

Democratic Candidate for
Cook County Assessor

John E. Traeger, was born January 20th, 1893, in Chicago, Illinois. Resident of the City of Chicago continuously since birth. Grammar school education received in the Public Schools of Chicago. Attended Lake View High School, St. John's Military Academy, Delafield, Wisconsin from which last school he was graduated, in June 1911.

Employed by National Produce Bank, 1912-15. Cashier in Sheriff's Office, 1915-18.

Volunteered for service in the U. S. Army, was member U. S. Army until close of world war. Immediately after his honorable discharge from the army he was employed in various offices in Cook County until 1926. Married October 28th, 1925, and lives with family, consisting of wife and two children at 9911 S. Seeley Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Member of James G. Brophy Post No. 149, American Legion, Forest Ridge Improvement Association and the German Club of Chicago.

In Real Estate and Insurance business until 1929. At present Assistant Sheriff of Cook County.

Mr. Traeger feels that his service in the County Treasurer's Office and his experience as Real Estate Appraiser for the Stockmen's Trust and Savings Bank, and other Banking institutions has fitted him for the Office of Assessor of Cook County.

Mr. Traeger believes that the power of the Assessor's Office, as fixed by law, should be exercised by the Assessors in the spreading of assessments to give to the small home owner much needed relief from the heavy tax burdens under which they are now suffering.

Mr. Traeger is opposed to the proposed amendment providing for an income tax to be voted on November 4th because in it he sees another effort on the part of the party in power to relieve the burdens of the State at large by taxing the incomes of the people of Chicago and Cook County.

WM.D. MEYERING

Democratic Candidate for Sheriff of Cook County

I was born in Chicago in 1892. My father was born in Holland. My mother was born in Chicago, of Irish extraction. I am one of eight children. My father, for thirty-five years, was employed as a motorman by the Chicago Surface Lines. Due to large family it was necessary for me to render any financial help possible as a boy and young man.

I started to caddy at local golf clubs at ten years of age and worked my way through high school and college. I graduated from grammar school, high school where I won a scholarship to college from which I was graduated with a B. A. Degree. I have always participated in various athletics, particularly baseball, basket ball and golf.

On leaving college I was employed by the International Harvester Company in their accounting department. I continued my studies at night, specializing in accountancy, for two years.

In a memorandum to the Secretary of War, Major General Robert C. Davis said:

"Captain Meyering was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross May 30th, 1918, for extraordinary heroism in action while commanding his platoon during an attack by the enemy on April 6th, 1918. He took effective measures before and during the attack to defeat the enemy and handled his men well under fire until the injury which resulted in the loss of his right hand. He refused assistance and walked thru the enemy's barrage to a dressing station. He objected to being taken to the rear till he knew the outcome of the attack. By his brave example he inspired his men to drive off the enemy who did not reach our trenches. He was also awarded the Croix De Guerre with Gilt Star by the French Government for his actions on April 6th, 1918."

Returning to civil life I was handicapped to continue my previous occupation and went to Montana and Wyoming and filed a homestead claim. Returning to Chicago I studied law at the University of Chicago for one year and then returned to the International Harvester Company filling various positions preparatory to sales work. Resigned from their employ to associate myself in the insurance business with McKee & Poague.

My first association in politics was in 1923 when I was elected President of the "Dever for Mayor Ex-Service Men's League" and during my association with this cause I decided to run for alderman of the Eighth Ward. I was elected and have been re-elected on three other occasions and now am a member of the City Council from this ward. My record in the City Council has at all times been acceptable to the press of Chicago as well as to the Municipal Voters' League and other organizations who make endorsements for political offices.

STATE SENATOR Arthur A. Huebsch

Republican Candidate
For Re-election
7th Senatorial District
Cook County

When the legislature created a commission to investigate the tax situation in Illinois and to recommend to its session beginning in January next apt laws to reduce the cost of government, reduce and equalize the tax burden the Governor was empowered to select three members of that body. He chose from Cook County Mr. Harrison Riley and Senator Arthur A. Huebsch. The members of the commission promptly selected Senator Huebsch chairman.

It is generally conceded that no new member of the State Senate had been extended so great an honor nor been entrusted with so important a post.

Under the leadership of Senator Huebsch that commission has prepared and will submit to the next legislature as thorough and comprehensive a report upon the subject as could be made. Its publication is awaited with the greatest interest. That it will result in substantial economies in public finance and reduce inequalities in taxation is confidently expected, for Senator Huebsch is regarded as an authority on the subject, is an able debater and is tireless in his endeavors to root out and overcome opposition and obstacles to substantial tax reform.

Prominent Chicagoans

In Whoopee Party

Last Saturday afternoon the officers of the Rock Island railroad treated a portion of our citizens to a most delightful ride. The company assembled at the depot at 4 o'clock and then all things being ready and all aboard the hosts gave the signal and the train was off for Blue Island.

So reads the Chicago Democrat of April 11th, 1853.

There were four breweries in Blue Island in 1853. What a time they must have had.

Dear Unkel:

I have a revelation to make which aint nothing to what I'm going to depose from now on but there aint nobody what don't see anything another business man's throat so I'll tell about this one first.

Ben Schroeder had a police dog that he didn't think about at all because you see Ben used to soak tobacco in a quart of water for a week and then pour the stuff on his fern and the dog used to drink the concoction up and Ben didn't have anything to pour on the fern and besides when he drunk it the dog would bite people and sometimes he'd pick on customers so Ben decided to lose the dog.

So he sold Clare Moore on the darn dog's qualities and Clare, being a milkman knew more about cats, and took the dog like Schroeder was his best friend and doing him a big favor and the blooming barber added insult to injury by giving Clare two packages of dog biscuits because a doctor said the dog should 'nt eat anything else.

And when Clare got home the first thing the dog ate was two chickens he found running around the yard alone with a slipper and Mrs. Moore's second best hat.

And if you ask me, that's why Clare Moore was in Donato's last Saturday night.

"It Must Not Happen Again"

GENERAL GALLIENI

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ACH Armistice day kindles emotions and memories in the minds of citizens of the nations which participated in the great conflict of 1914-18 such as no other day in the year has at present the power to do, says the British military historian, Capt. B. H. Liddell Hart, in the epilogue of his book, "The Real War," published recently by Little, Brown and company. "For those who shared in the experiences of those four and a quarter years of struggle the commemoration does not stale with repetition," he continues. "But the mood in which it is commemorated has undergone subtle changes. On the original Armistice itself the dominant note was a sigh of relief, of infinite volume, most restrained among those who had the most direct cause for relief, most exuberant, perhaps, among those who least appreciated the relief."

"The earlier anniversaries were dominated by two opposite emotions. On the one hand grief—a keener sense, now that the storm had passed, of the vacant places in our midst. On the other hand, triumph—flamboyant only in rare cases, but nevertheless a heightened sense of victory, that the enemy had been laid low. That mood again has been modified."

"Armistice day has become more a commemoration than a celebration. The passage of time has refined and blended the earlier emotions, so that, without losing sense of the personal loss and of quiet thankfulness that as a nation we proved our continued power to meet a crisis graver than any in past annals, we are today conscious, above all, of the general effects on the world and on civilization. In this mood of reflection we are more ready to recognize both the achievements and the point of view of our late enemies, and perhaps all the more because we realize that both the causes and the course of war are determined by the folly and the frailty rather than by the deliberate evil of human nature."

"The war has become history, and can be viewed in the perspective of history. For good it has deepened our sense of fellowship and community of interest, whether inside the nation or between nations. But, for good or bad, it has shattered our faith in idols, our hero-worshipping belief that great men are different clay from common men. Leaders are still necessary, perhaps more necessary, but our awakened realization of their common humanity is a safeguard against either expecting from them, or trusting in them, too much. It has been for the benefit of both history and of future generations that the past decade has seen such a flood of evidence and revelation, of documents and memoirs. That most of the actors are still alive provides an invaluable check in sifting the evidence, while the historians themselves have been so immersed in the atmosphere of war that they have a certain immunity from the abstract theorizing which a historian in his cloistered study fifty years later so easily contracts. We know nearly all that is to be known. The one drawback is that the flood has been so huge that only the student has been able to cope with its investigation."

That excellent statement of the spirit of Armistice day, as it is observed now and as it will be observed in the years to come, is a fitting climax to an excellent one-volume history of the World War which gives the reader, as probably no other single book has yet done, a clear idea of that conflict—how it came to be, how it was fought and how and why it resulted as it did. The reading of it might well be a singularly fitting part of the observance of Armistice day. For after one has read what is written there, there inevitably comes to the mind of the reader that cry, wrung first from the hearts of the war-weary nations when at last the hideous nightmare of four years of slaughter was ended, the cry which has become a solemn vow—"It must not happen again!" And Armistice day is a day for repeating that vow.

The pacifists will gain no comfort from "The Real War." For it shows all too clearly that, unless they can change human nature, their recipe for avoiding war can never be made to work. Nor will the militarists find in its pages any arguments to support their theories as to the best way to ward off the danger of war. On the contrary, the history of the World War constitutes the most damning indictment that can be brought against the extremists on both sides. But somewhere in between lies the answer—in the common sense of the masses of the people of all nations, who have to fight the wars which are brought to them by their blundering peace leaders and who suffer most in those wars through the mistakes of their blundering war leaders. It is from out that common sense with its increased recognition of "the folly and frailty rather than the deliberate evil of human nature" and its "deepened sense of fellowship and community interest, whether inside the nation or between nations" that there comes the sorrowing cry and the solemn vow of "It must not happen again!"

The fundamental causes of the World War can be epitomized in three words, according to Captain Liddell Hart. They are fear, hunger and pride—fear of one nation by another, whether there was any real justification for it or not; hunger for more territory and more prestige in the family of nations; and pride which would not allow the leaders and diplomats of the various nations to recede from stands they had taken even though their stand could gain them no real advantage and was only another threat to the peace of Europe. Although Allied propaganda during the war, and even after it, fixed the blame for the war upon the Central Powers, the evidence which this British historian brings forth shows that all the nations—France, England, Russia, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy and the Balkan states—had their share in the fear, the hunger and the pride which brought on the war.

The origins of the war went back more than 40 years and by 1914 "the surface of the Continent was strewn with powder." The fatal spark was struck at Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital, on June 28, 1914. However, even this spark might not have set off the explosion had it not been for the fact that in Germany, Austria and Russia, the military men, during the crisis immediately preceding the assassination, had gained the upper hand over their governments and were determined upon war, all inspired by a common fear of being caught off guard.

In fact the blunders of military technique is one of the main themes of this book. In it Moltke, the German chief of staff, is shown as a blundering war leader. He paints Hindenburg and Ludendorff as having grown great only in legend and adulation. Allied military idols are as ruthlessly exposed. Foch is shown as a much-overrated general, especially during the early part of the war. Joffre fails to rise to the heights required of a great commander in chief because of lack of initiative. Liddell Hart condemns his "unquenchable optimism divorced from reason," and shows that, popular opinion to the contrary notwithstanding, Joffre was not "the hero of the Marne," as his name has come down in history, nor a truly great military leader. In the four-year struggle on the western front one stroke of Napoleonic genius is noted and that was supplied by that most unimilitary of military men, General Gallieni, safely shelved when the war began in the job of military governor of Paris. It was this professorial officer, in eyeglasses and yellow gaiters, who saw the opportunity that Joffre did not see and Sir John French did not see, who succeeded in opening Joffre's eyes, with the result that an army was sent around Paris to strike the Germans on their exposed flank, stopping their advance and then forcing their retreat. This was the first battle of the Marne.

Nor does this British expert spare the military leaders of his own nation. It was blunders by high British officials "at home" which brought about the Dardanelles and Gallipoli fiasco when they refused to heed the recommendations of their subordinates who were on the ground and knew best what was needed to make the campaign a success. It was these same "arm chair warriors" who, though having had ample advance warning of the German plans for using gas, either pool-poached the idea or disregarded it entirely and it was the same men who delayed the adoption of tanks, which turned out to be such a formidable weapon, and then were only half-hearted in adoption of the idea. Sir John French, the field commander who began the war, is painted as "endlessly vacillating" and Sir Douglas Haig suffers for his belief in his divine right to command and for his needless sacrifice of men in the first three years of the war.

In fact it is that last factor which lends a tone of bitterness to the cry of "It must not happen again!" The masses of people of the nations might read Captain Liddell Hart's book and have only a casual interest in his analysis of successful and unsuccessful military technique, of why this strategic move won and that tactical error lost a pawn in the great game of war. Nor would they be inclined to blame this general or that one for his failure.

But when they read how this general or that one gambled with the lives of thousands of men when there was no real advantage to be gained and there is borne upon them the full horror of the needless slaughter of the young manhood of the nation—then it is that "It must not happen again!" takes on an ominous tone. Such cases are all too common in "The Real War." In it one reads how in September, 1914, Joffre, "the unquenchable optimist" planned a breakthrough by the French and British in two sectors. His plan failed. True, he did gain a slight amount of ground but the cost was a casualty list of 242,000!

In 1918 the world hailed Foch as the generalissimo of all the Allied forces who at last had brought victory. But Captain Liddell Hart's book reminds us that in 1915 it was Foch who begged Sir John French to support a French offensive to retake the Langemarck region at all costs. So the British general hurled his troops into the attack and when his subordinates, seeing the uselessness of their efforts, asked permission to withdraw, Sir John French, influenced by Foch, overruled their wish and they were compelled to stay there to be in readiness to aid the French offensive. But that offensive never developed, for finally "Foch confessed that Joffre, so far from sending reinforcements, was calling for troops to be sent from Ypres to strengthen his forthcoming offensive near Arras." Even after that the British commander kept his troops in the salient where they were "one huge artillery target, there to be pounded and gassed incessantly, with their scanty ammunition running out, until relief came at last, in the fourth week of May, through the Germans exhausting their own comparative superfluity of shells."

The author of "The Real War" speaks volumes in these words: "To throw good money after bad is foolish. But to throw away men's lives where there is no reasonable chance of advantage is criminal. In the heat of battle, mistakes in the command are inevitable, and amply excusable. But the real indictment of leadership arises when attacks that are inherently vain are ordered merely because if they could succeed they would be useful. For such 'manslaughter' whether it springs from ignorance, a false conception of war, or a want of moral courage, commanders should be held accountable to the nation."

But lest one get the idea that this British historian is protesting against the slaughter of his countrymen through the mistakes of the military leader of another nation, let it be recorded that he is no less strong in his denunciation of British generals, too.

Can I Learn to Fly?

by William R. Nelson

Getting Out of a Stall

STALLS, their causes, effects and how to get out of them, was the "chapter" about learning to fly "studied" the next trip up. Apparently convinced that I was progressing satisfactorily with take offs, routine flying and landings, my instructor took advantage of a poor day for landing practice to advance me another step.

I had heard much about stalls and stalls and while not afraid to go through them with him, I was concerned about their possible effects to me.

"In a stall the plane may fall off on a wing (sidewise) and spin in," my instructor explained through the speaking tubes as he shut off the motor momentarily at 3,000 feet (the highest I had been). "Notice that the ailerons have little or no effect in a stall. We hold the plane straight by kicking the rudder sharply. Keep off of the controls and watch."

He pulled back on the stick and we shot skyward, the motor still idling. As we picked up forward speed again, he pulled it back and we came out of the dive.

"In this next one follow through lightly on the controls. Notice the quick kicks I give the rudder pedals."

Again he pulled the ship up into a stall. As we plunged downward I felt the rudder pedals moving sharply, first one way, then the other, as he held the ship to a straight course, and the stick go forward, then come slowly back.

"Now you do it," he said through the speaking tube. "Don't dive too far before pulling up."

I pulled back on the stick, and we shot upward—straight upward, it seemed. Then came that plunge downward. I moved the stick forward to neutral. Down we went. Slow at first. Then faster, faster, faster.

When we were headed nearly straight down I pulled back on the stick, kicking the rudder pedals as he had done, right to head off a leftward movement, left to head off a skid to the right. At times my feet were pumping as though I was riding a bicycle.

As we came out of the dive he opened the throttle and we started climbing back to 3,000 feet. We had fallen 2,000 feet in the three stalls. A half dozen more practice stalls and we headed back to the airport. That lesson made me "woozle."

The Tailspin

TAILSPINS, one of the novice flyer's greatest fears, are taught in practically all flying courses, not as a stunt but as necessary experience. Most airplanes will tailspin under certain conditions. And all planes will come out of them if properly handled, except, possibly, in those infrequent instances where something about the control surfaces becomes broken in flight.

In a tailspin the nose of the plane is headed down and the plane rotates, the fuselage (body), in a nearly perpendicular position, serving as the axis. Spins generally follow a stall in which the ship is allowed to "fall off on a wing" in a sidewise slip.

"To make this plane tailspin, we cut the motor to idling, pull up into a stall, and as we stop going up, push one of the rudder pedals forward as far as it will go and hold it there until we lock into the spin," my instructor explained as he cut the motor at about 3,000 feet up.

"Just ride through this first one. Don't touch the controls. Ready?"

We shot skyward for a short distance, then I felt the plane stop, then fall to the right. As the bottom of the arc, followed by the nose, was reached I felt a peculiar, gripping sensation take hold of the plane and we began to spin around, diving straight, or nearly straight, toward the earth.

A sudden lifting sensation told me we were coming out of the dive; we had stopped spinning.

I followed through lightly on the controls in the next spin, after we had climbed back to 3,000 feet, and then put the ship into a spin myself. With the stick pulled toward me as far as it would go, I jammed the right rudder pedal forward at the top of the stall and held both controls tightly.

"After one spin, neutralize the rudder and stick," my instructor had said. "When we stop spinning, pull back on the stick to come out of the dive. Do not dive too long."

The earth below whirled about us at terrific speed. We seemed to spin like a top. But we made only two complete revolutions. It took a half turn to lock in. Then we spun around once before I neutralized the controls and it took another half turn to come out, diving all the while. We lost about 1,000 feet in the maneuver.

St. Bernard Dogs

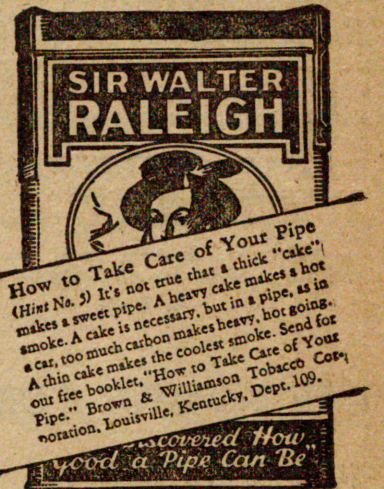

The original St. Bernard dog is believed to have been bred from an imported German boarhound, crossed with a rough-coated sheep dog of a type common in Switzerland. The St. Bernard took after either parent in being rough or smooth coated. Some authorities say that the dogs at present used at the monastery are not St. Bernards, but Newfoundlanders. Others that the dogs now in use have had added to the St. Bernard a strain of Newfoundland or Pyrenean.

"In plain blunt words, Bill, your pipe smells like a 'Hot-Box'!"

ONLY an old and trusted friend would venture to speak so frankly.

A new pipe, or an old one carefully broken in with Sir Walter Raleigh's favorite smoking mixture, changes everything. And why shouldn't it? Sir Walter is milder and more fragrant. And it has the body and flavor found only in the finest of Burley, skillfully seasoned and blended. What more could we offer any pipe smoker? What more could he ask?

Triumph Over Paralysis Claimed by Physician

General paralysis may be detected in its incipient state, making a complete cure possible, by a test just revealed and demonstrated by Dr. K. O. Newman, pathologist of the Oxford County and City Mental hospital, in England. He claims to have devised a blood-test, which would do away with the present process of removing spinal fluid from patients by a minor surgical operation, often painful and troublesome. The blood test would give an opportunity to apply treatment at a stage when prevention is possible, declares Doctor Newman. It is believed a cure might be effected by an early system of artificial inoculation with malarial fever.

Monopolistic Prices

In general, prices of goods under monopoly will be higher than under competition, but this will not always be the case if, as may happen, the costs under monopoly are less than the costs under competition. In some cases monopoly may result in lowering costs so much that the greatest profit is obtained by setting the price lower than under competition.
